THE NEED TO EDUCATE

Education, or the process of learning, never stops. It is endless and we should exert ourselves to learn more and more every day of every year of our lives. We should learn those things which could have a practical application as well as those hypothetical and theoretical facts and formulas which might not have a direct influence in our daily schedule.

It is important to spend time learning a thing well, but we should not specialize where it is important that we become well-rounded and more broad-minded in our education. To get the kind of preparation for loftier topics of study, it is not entirely necessary that we approach the mental capacity of Einstein or Newton, but rather that we have curiosity, or a "thirst" for knowledge, and that we develop diligent, conscientious study habits. A formal education is only the beginning.

There is almost no end to the advantages of a good education. The person who has opened his mind to learn is usually open-minded about other things as well. Learning is living, and with every new thing we learn we profit from the process of learning itself if only because self-satisfaction is a reward. Material gain is evident in the higher annual salary of the man with an education. Aside from this we can observe that the happiest and most productive persons in the world are the people who have a goal in mind toward which they work, laying brick upon brick, building slowly at first and then faster and always with their ultimate goal before them.

WHY READ

Many boys and girls say, "What is the sense of reading; it's just a waste of time."

They don't know what they are missing. There is much enjoyment in reading, and it is a source of unlimited knowledge. A book can be exciting and informing. When I am reading a good book I can't stop sometimes until I have read forty or fifty pages.

A good student has to read well in order to receive high marks. Through his reading he acquires knowledge that is retained for use in his work or ordinary life.

The working person needs to expand his or her knowledge. It can be done by reading. Industries welcome employees that read. In industries the employee might have to read to set up mechanical devices, to find out how he can operate a new machine, and for many other reasons.

A way that people who can not attend school can educate themselves is by doing correspondence courses. A hundred per cent of the study activity depends on reading. If they want to pass the course, they will read and get the information that is required.

Our very survival depends on reading. We should be informed in order to prevent the spread of communism. The reason for our being concerned about the spread of communism is pointed out very clearly in Khruschev's threat to the United States, "We will bury you."

OPPORTUNITY

As we have been studying about the living conditions in other countries, we should be more thankful than we have ever been for the many opportunities that we have in a free country. Have we ever stopped to think of our different freedoms — freedom of religion, press, and speech?

As our forefathers came here from Europe, they had a vision — a vision of freedom and opportunity. Although they had to face many hardships, which we do not have to experience today, they toiled and sacrificed to build our great nation. Now as we carry on to keep our land prosperous and free, we should remember that we, as young people, are the citizens of our great n a t i o n of tomorrow.

As Americans, may we always appreciate the opportunities that are ours. May we realize that it requires sacrifice, faith, courage, and hard work, along with good will on the part of each of us to see us through the crisis of our present world.

NATURE'S BEAUTY

The beauty of nature is ours to enjoy;
For father and mother, for each girl and boy,
There are mountains, and rivers, and beautiful lakes;
Eagles and songbirds, and long curly snakes.
There are pine and birch forest, and spruce trees, and more;
And they are waiting, just outside our door.
We may see moose drinking, down by a stream;
So mystic is nature, it seems like a dream.
There are many rabbits crossing our path;
We may see deer bounding, graceful and fast.
There are gorges in rocks where rivers have run;
Any many large caves, where stalactites are hung,
There are snow covered mountains, grass covered plains;
And acres of desert, that seldom see rain.
So when we are tired, let's look out of doors;
And see all the beauty in nature's vast stores.

Eugene Smith '66

SNOW BEAUTY

The next time you go out on a cold, winter day,
When the ground is all covered with snow,
Look around and listen, observe what is there,
Take note of the world as you go.

You'll sense in a minute the fell of the air,
Clean, crisp, tingling, alive,
The snow all around is glistening with pride,
Snowbirds flush as you arrive.

Oh, the beauty of forest enshrouded about,
The green boughs bending low;
With the season's white garments which they all wear without,
There's nowhere more beauty, I know.

Herrick Carver '64

"THE SEASONS"

Nature is such a wonderful thing,
It gives us our seasons beginning with Spring.

We hear the birds in the trees trying to say,
The beauty of Summer isn't far away.

The children in swimming start to call,
You had better come in, kids, before the Fall.

The leaves which have fallen need to be raked;
Then comes the Winter, that we all seem to hate.

Then Spring comes again, which we all adore;
And then the schedule runs the same as before.

JIM BAXTER'S SUCCESS

Jim Baxter was a freshman. What a wonderful feeling to have. He was going to try hard to make something of his life. As the year "crept by", or so it seemed to Jim, he got bored. He did not want to go to school anyway. He was old enough to leave school, and he was going to leave. The teachers talked with Jim, tried to show him the mistake he was making, but he would not listen. His mind was "made up"!

Jim needed money, but his father would not give any to him. Jack Baxter was a wise man. If Jim was old enough to leave school, he was certainly old enough to earn his own money. Jim's father had tried to tell his son that he was making a big mistake, that he needed his high school as well as college training to succeed. Jim was too stubborn, he was through with school forever. His father could talk all he wanted; he was not listening.

Jim tried to get a job with a good salary, but he didn't have enough education. Jim ended up as a handy man. He knew this would never do. What could he do? Finally Jim had a serious talk with his father, for he realized he needed advice. Mr. Baxter thought it would be wise for Jim to ask the principal for permission to return to school. Jim did as his father said; the principal was pleased to allow Jim to return to school for he realized that Jim had learned an important lesson. Today Jim Baxter is a senior, graduating with high honors, and plans to attend college in the fall. He has chosen his profession; he is going to be a teacher.

Jim now realizes the need for an education. He wants to help other boys and girls and encourage them to take advantage of the opportunities that are theirs.

AN INVITATION

Have you ever spent a day on the ocean,
Watching the waves roll by?
Have you ever seen the boats in motion,
Tossed to and fro under the bright blue sky?

Have you ever listened to the sea gulls calling
As they fly and glide as though playing a game?
I think all nature is sending an invitation,
For everyone to come to visit Maine.

THE ASSIGNMENT

The assignment is a theme to write,
And I sit here thinking with all my might;
I scratch my head and move my feet,
Then bite my fingernails and squirm in my seat.
Class time is coming, and I haven't my theme done;
It is times like these that I wish I wasn't so dumb.

SENIOR PLAY

The senior play this year was, in turn, a mystery, a comedy, and a thrilling whirl of excitement as the "Meddlesome Maid", played by Rita Norton, managed to meddle in every affair until it became difficult to tell whether Dolly was the baby girl or Dolly Darling, played by Margaret Beal, or a boat which was to be presented as a gift to Mrs. Winthrop, played by Donaline Alley. But, the finishing parts of the play cleared the confusion with more humor and excitement.

Help! Help!

Don't cry Dolly Darling.

I'm from headquarters.

I'll not stand here and be insulted further.

THE AUGUSTA TRIP

My Visit to the State House

On our recent visit to Augusta, there were many things I saw that impressed me. I think of all the places we visited, however, the State House, or Capitol Building impressed me most. Perhaps, that is because it is the center of our state government. There are many things in the State House to see. It's a tour in itself.

The museum in the State House is one of the most interesting highlights of the building. There on display are Indian relics including arrowheads of all shapes and kinds, tomahawks, and beads. Some beads were used for necklaces others for head dresses. One of the necklaces on display was worn by "Geronimo". A skeleton of an Indian woman is on display with the facts about her.

In several different places in the museum, there are scenes set up behind glass showing wild animals in their normal surroundings. The animals shown in the scenes are stuffed animals which look very real. One scene which especially took my eye was one featuring a covered bridge, a waterfall, and a stream with real fish in it. On the side of the stream, there are a boy's shoes and socks and school books, showing that, as a typical boy, he has left school for fishing or swimming.

Next to the scene with the bridge, there is a cabinet, which I couldn't begin to describe. It was hand carved, and given to the museum by Percival Baxter, a former governor, who did much for Maine in conservation. The contents of this cabinet also belonged to Mr. Baxter. One beautiful article in the cabinet was a French clock. Another article was an inkwell that had come from Napoleon's house.

There were stuffed birds, fish, and other animals, which were native to Maine, in glass cabinets. There were many other things of interest in the museum.

The Hall of Flags in the State House is very impressive. The hall is almost completely made of marble which is beautiful. Tall columns stand around a bust of former Governor Baxter whom I have mentioned earlier. Around the walls are the cabinets containing flags from the Civil War, First World War, and flags from the "Maine". These flags are torn, and just hang in threads it seems. When we think of what they stand for, these flags seem almost beautiful.

Leaving the Hall of Flags, and walking to the dome, one can see many portraits of famous men. Some are portraits of former governors of Maine. The portrait that stood out most in my mind was up in the dome. It was of George Washington.

Now, I'll try to tell you about the House of Representatives. This is a large room decorated mostly in green. Velvet draperies in green hang at the windows. There are 150 desks for the Representatives, divided into four sections. At the front is the platform for the Speaker, clerk, chaplain, and other important men.

The Senate is done in green, also. It is much smaller with desks for thirty-four senators.

The governor and his council have a room with a long table and seats for eight men. This room is also done in green.

There are more things to see, but these are the things that stood out most in my mind.

BASKETBALL

This year, under Coach Erwin Alley, we had a fine season, closing with a seasonal record of 16 wins and 3 losses. The team tied with Jonesport to become Co-West Washington County Champions.

We entered the Washington County Tournament in third place where we defeated Harrington, a sixth placed team, 61-37. In the semi-finals, we were eliminated by Jonesport, which had defeated us once during the regular season, by a score of 44-35.

We would like to thank the people of the town of Beals for the interest they have shown in us by their voting to build a new gymnasium, which we hope will be constructed before the next season.

Behind our only senior, Nathan Fagonde, we have our hopes high and our shooting eyes ready for "1964".

CHEERLEADERS

CHEERLEADERS

Our cheerleading practices started in November with a squad of seven girls; Captain Genesta Alley, Co-Captain Margaret Beal, Shirley Alley, Jeannine Alley, Twyla Beal, Diana Beal, and Dorrene Beal.

Our uniforms this year were made of wide wale corduroy. The tops were worn over white blouses with ruffled collars and long sleeves. We wore white bobby socks and white sneakers with white pompoms.

The other cheerleaders, I am sure, feel the same as I do; we have had fun cheering and traveling together.

We appreciate the work that was done by Regina Beal in making our cheering uniforms.

We are grateful to Mr. and Mrs. Esten Beal Jr., Mr. and Mrs. Millard Alley, and Mrs. Almer Beal, who provided the transportation and who served as chaperons for us this year.

SOCIAL CITES

September 6 — Probably the only day when so many of us are enjoying a day of school so much, because, after all, the first day of school is always an exciting get-acquainted day for the shy little freshmen, and an especially big day for the seniors who delight in taking full command of every situation. With the commencement of school this year we have a total high school enrollment of 38; 24 boys and 14 girls.

September 11 — Smile pretty! There you go. —It's all over? Boy, that was quick. Why, I spent all that time combing and primping, why, I even took a bath with those sweet-smelling bubbles this morning. I hope I didn't break the camera.

September 21 — Oh! Nervous time. Tonight! Tonight! I'll surely die before this night is gone. And, what freshman wouldn't fear his own reception with raw eggs and baby food.

October 22 — What? More pictures? Oh, I see, just the seniors. Look at them. Aren't they conceited. You'd think they came from Hollywood or some place.

December 12 — Oh! No! Not again. Well, I guess it's all right if we get into it too this time. We all want the yearbook to be a success so stop that giggling and take your places, everyone.

March 18 — What a mix-up when you've got such a "meddlesome maid" snooping around the house. What's worse is to have two boats to be presented as gifts and a hidden baby girl all with the name, "Dolly". But, after they had presented the confusion, our seniors with much hilarity and excitement managed to unravel the mystery by, well, how else, by presenting the rest of their play.

March 21 — What's more fun than a day with no school? Why, a day when you take a class trip, of course. And, so, four seniors and six juniors set out for Augusta to tour through the capitol. By a very good favor of our representative and Speaker of the House, David Kennedy, we were privileged to shake hands with the governor, we were having fun. We visited the Blaine Mansion, the museum of natural history, the new library, and quite a few of the elevators. I doubt if any of us will ever forget such a memorable day.

April 15 — With four juniors, two sophomores, and two freshmen, we presented our public speaking contest this year. With cold hands and knees 'aquiver' we spoke our parts. And then that eternity in a quarter of an hour waiting for the judges' decision. When the decision was announced we found that first place was taken by Shirley White, Twyla Beal placed second, and third place winner was James Woodward. We made a repeat presentation three days later. Our speakers who took places in the local contest competed at Addison May 29 for the quadrangular trophy.

May 14 - June 14 — The school is raging with an epidemic of chronic spring fever, and with the contagion spreading like wildfire, it looks as if there is little hope of immediate recovery. We all await with eagerness the final day of school.

Moe: "That's your shirt, all right. But you've got your head through the buttonhole."

First Cowboy: "Why do you wear only one spur?"
Second Cowboy: "Well, I figure when one side of the horse starts running, the other side will too!"

Ralph: "I'm homesick."

New Yorker: (At Niagara Falls) "Well, now don't tell me you have anything like that in Texas."
Texan: "No, but we do have a plumber who can fix that leak in ten minutes."

Father: "My boy, I never kissed a girl until I met your mother. Will you be able to say the same thing to your son?"
Junior: "Yes, Dad, but not with such a straight face."

Shirley: "Why do you call your car baby?"
Calvin: "Because it never goes anywhere without a rattle."

Small boy handing mother phone: "It's Mrs. Carter with the 6 o'clock news."

Boss: "How come you're only carrying one sack, when the other men are carrying two?"
Workman: "Well, I suppose they're too lazy to make two trips, the way I do."

Native of Iceland: (To tourist) "We have very short summers here. Last year it was on a Tuesday."

1st Mosquito: "Why are you limping?"
2nd Mosquito: "I came out through the screen door and strained myself."

Sue: "Hurry! Run to the library and get a book on how to bring up a child."

Barber: "Your hair is turning gray, sir."
Customer: "I'm not surprised. Hurry up!"

"But, darling," said the prospective bride, "if I marry you I'll lose my job."
"Can't we keep our marriage a secret?" asked her fiance.
"But suppose we have a baby?"
"Oh, we'll tell the baby, of course."

Judge: "Do you challenge any of the jury?"
Defendant: "Well, I think I could lick that little fellow on the end."

"Why don't you play golf with George any more?" Pete's wife asked him.
"Would you play with a fellow who puts down the wrong score and moves the ball when you aren't watching?"
"No," she replied.
"Neither will George."

A sad-faced man came into a flower shop early one morning. The clerk was ready to take his order for a funeral piece, but he guessed wrong. The customer wanted a basket of flowers sent to his wife for their anniversary.
"And what day will that be?" the clerk asked.
Glumly the man replied, "Yesterday."

"Have you been to any other doctor before you came to me?" asked the grouchy doctor.
"No, sir," replied the meek patient. "I went to a druggist."
"That shows how much sense some people have!" growled the doctor. "And what sort of idiotic advice did he give you?"
"He told me to come to see you."

The trouble with these smart modern children is that they don't smart enough in the right places!

Some cars have fluid drive; others just have a drip at the wheel.

Sign in employment office: "Don't underestimate yourself. Let us do it for you."

You're not driving your car after you pass 65 miles an hour, you're aiming it.
